

A Study in Grace

Interconnections of learning and living are the key to the flexibility of the new 15,500 square foot Commons at the Richard J. Daley Library, University of Illinois at Chicago. CREDITS: David Woodhouse Architects, architect; photo, Christopher Barrett.

More all-day, all-night study occurs at the two-story Center for Science & Social Science Information, Yale University, New Haven, CT, with group study rooms and a sunken courtyard in a space that combines the operations of three formerly separate units. CREDITS: Apicella & Bunton LLC, architect; photo, Carl Kaufman © Yale University.

